MEMORY HOOKS

Lehi's three blessings are three arguments: a covenant land (1), opposition and choice (2), a latter-day seer (3).

Nephi's psalm (4:16–35) is the one place he admits weakness at length — right after his father dies.

Chapter 5 splits one family into the two nations the rest of the Book of Mormon is about.

Nephi quotes Isaiah because his soul delights in his words (11:2), then explains him in plainness (25:4).

It ends with doctrine, not history: faith, repentance, baptism, the Holy Ghost, endure (31).
